CHINA UNABLE TO STAND OFF LITTLE JAPAN

Latter Country Will Alter the Antung-Mukden Railway to Suit Herself.

GREAT BRITAIN BACKS HER ALLY IN ORIENT

PESSIMISM IN PEKING—STATESMEN OF FLOWERY KINGDOM FORESEE STRUGGLE.

Tokyo, Aug. 9.—A request that Japan suspend work on the Antung-Mukden railway in Manchuria is the substance of China's reply to Japan's recent note announcing immediate commencement of reconstruction work on the road. The reply, issued by the foreign office today, states that China wishes to continue the negotiations. China adds that she wishes for an amicable settlement of all outstanding difficulties.
Japan's reply to this request was polite but firm. It was made plain that the negotiations concerning the Antung-Mukden railroad had been closed forever, except in so far as they related to that section of the road between Mukden and Che-Siang-Tun, and that it would not be necessary to suspend work to reach an agreement.
Regarding all other matters, the reply continues, Japan will proceed with pleasure.

Peking, Aug. 9.—The Chinese foreign board and the grand council have been in executive conference with President Chen, the report, on the Japanese situation since the issuance of Japan's note announcing her intention of proceeding immediately with the reconstruction of the Antung-Mukden railroad, without China's co-operation.

Liang Tun Yen, the president of the board of foreign affairs, was received in audience by the prince regent yesterday and today. The regent showed great anxiety at Japan's attitude in covering China, which was supported by Great Britain, and he urged the foreign board to accelerate a settlement of the question in order not to provoke Japan.

China Reasonable.

The Associated Press today learns that China has virtually conceded Japan's demand that the railroad be made of standard gauge, and is willing to accept any reasonable compromise, but is debarred from giving a treaty consent on account of Japan's suspicious attitude in forcing the gauge question in claiming for the Antung-Mukden line advantages existing on the Southern Manchurian railroad and through her refusal to negotiate the latter question. Japan insisted on postponing consideration of the South Manchurian question when the Antung-Mukden railroad was reconstructed.
China does not object to the expansion of the Antung-Mukden railway commercially, but as a Japanese military strategic enterprise ending in another foreign military and commercial barrier across Manchuria.

Extreme Pessimism.

Great Britain's support of Japan has made a deep impression on Chinese statesmen, who point out that Great Britain's attitude developed simultaneously with the war scare in Europe. Extreme pessimism prevails in government circles. High officials say that as Japan has British support she supposes she can do what she likes.

China, in her formal reply to Japan's note announcing the latter's intention of reconstructing the Antung-Mukden railroad, offered to waive her objection to the road being made of standard gauge, provided Japan waived her claim to the policing of the railway as well as her mining and other privileges in the region. However, the note said, if Japan was determined to go ahead with the reconstruction of the road, China was defenseless.

DISGRACE KILLED HIM.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 9.—Grief over his disgrace, although freed from prison, is described as being largely responsible for the death of Samuel Francis Smith, former mayor of Davenport, in Toronto yesterday. Smith, the son of the writer of "America," was released last Thursday from the state reformatory after serving seven years of an eleven-year sentence, having been convicted of embezzling trust funds. He was on his way to Newton Center, Mass., where his wife and daughter were awaiting him.

WIZARD WEEPS TEARS OF JOY, CAUSING DELUGE

Potentate Deeply Moved by Vast Crowds of Faithful Subjects Assembled.

WILL SURELY APPEAR NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

SENDS BENEFICENT RAINFALL AS TOKEN OF HIS PLEASURE AT DEMONSTRATION.

East Canyon, Aug. 9, 3 a. m.—The Wizard was found here a few minutes ago. As soon as he was able to talk he announced that he would positively appear with all his retinue at 9 o'clock next Saturday evening. He also announced that he would come dry.

The Wizard of the Wasatch did not appear last night before the waiting throng gathered to do him honor and to hearken to the pearls of wisdom dropping from his venerable lips. Neither did his attendant Janizettes, Heralds and Comrades appear. Neither did most of the Cowboys and Cowgirls and Noble Red-men appear.
However, it was not a lonesome evening. Mr. Jupiter Pluvius, a citizen well known on the Pacific coast and elsewhere, decided at the last moment to take a hand in the transactions of the evening himself and had little difficulty in drawing most of the interest.
Mr. Pluvius brought the folks along. They did not stay long, but they were very active while they did remain. Arriving about 8:15 o'clock, they remained about one hour. In that time they assayed with marked success to transform Salt Lake's brilliantly illuminated and beautifully decorated thoroughfares into striking marine views.

Not to delay the denouement too long, it rained. Not only that, but it rained somewhat. To make the meaning academically clear and emphatic, the rain fell in rains.
Most of the moisture came from above, but some of it came from below. The ascending moisture bounded upward from the pavements, so intense was the earnestness with which the little drops of water came in contact with the sidewalks and pavements.
The water did not "descend in sheets," it came naked. It assailed and conquered everything offered as impediments to its passage. Umbrellas were just jokes, awnings were false friends and doorways were convenient drying places. The reviewing stands were just a shade wetter than any other places, if it be fair to single out any particular places for distinction when all were so nobly inundated.
With the liberal contributions from Sundry Master of the Waters, came frequent and liberal donations from Indra, Master of the Thunder. The lights almost went out and the street cars were forced to quit work entirely for a time.
As it was strictly a holiday crowd, attired in apparel appropriate to the occasion, it is not difficult to imagine that there were some dampened personages. Summer girls especially looked—and probably felt—somewhat disarrayed.
Spots of red and blue dye, acquired as a result of standing beneath bargain-day bunting in a rainstorm, are not calculated to add chic to a white shirtwaist or a summer hat. Nor does a carefully pressed costume take on splendor when it adheres thoroughly and rather completely to the figure.

Wizard the Rainmaker.

The crowd was game, however, and most of those present—and there were many—stuck it out.
A stray "Wizard of the Wizard," whooping up his trusty steed in an apparent effort to reach the wild bunch or the home ranch without delay gave the crowd a chance to relieve its feelings now and then. There was really no need for quelling the scene after the first five minutes. There was no such thing as getting any wetter. In evident realization of this fact, most of the crowd waited and presently the rain ceased—almost. A fairly brisk shower continued but, as everything in this world is measured on the relative basis, the crowd decided it was dry.

Just about the time a movement was well under way to hunt the Wizard to his lair and slay him out of hand, the glorious word was passed that he was on his way.

NOTHING DOING IN CASTLE CASE

Woman Represented by Her Brother and Hearing Postponed Until Today.

New York, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Mary Scott Castle, erstwhile actress from California, who denied William B. Craig's fountain pen and slightly wounded him in the Waldorf, was released from the Jefferson Market prison tonight under $5,000 bail, after six days of imprisonment.

New York, Aug. 9.—With her brother, Captain Henry Harrison Scott, U. S. A., by her side, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle, the California woman who on Tuesday last, at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, shot and slightly wounded William B. Craig, a lawyer, appeared in court today for a preliminary examination.

Captain Scott, who represented her yesterday, accompanied his sister in the Jefferson market court when the case was called. It turned out, however, that no developments in the case were probable today, as Mrs. Castle's attorney immediately asked for and obtained an adjournment of the examination until tomorrow on the ground that Captain Scott had not had time to go over the situation in detail with attorneys for the prisoner.

Mrs. Castle's lawyer stated today that arrangements had been made for her release on bail before night. Mrs. Castle had intimated that she might have a counter-charge to make against Craig when the case came up today, but it was said for her that when she appeared in court tomorrow it would in all probability be only for the purpose of formally waiving examination.
There was a meeting between Craig and Captain Scott in the corridor of the court house after the adjournment of the case today, but it failed to develop any dramatic features. Captain Scott had ignored Craig, but the latter approached him and requested a word with him. Captain Scott acquiesced with apparent reluctance and the two retired to a secluded corner, where they conversed for several minutes. Craig gesticulating excitedly. Then both left the court house.

MURDERED IN CEMETERY

Anna Schumacher, Aged 17, Victim of One or More Unknown Men at Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Leaving her home early on Saturday to place flowers on the grave of her father, Anna Schumacher, 17 years old, who resides with her mother in this city, was attacked by one or more unknown men, criminally assaulted and murdered. Her body was dragged outside the cemetery to a depression in a lonely spot and covered with earth and leaves. There it was discovered this morning by constables of the town of Greece, who found marks of a struggle in the Schumacher family plot in the cemetery.

A superficial examination by the physicians of the body led the police to announce that a criminal assault had preceded the murder. Particles of what looked like skin were found under the girl's finger nails, indicating she had fought her assailants.
The spade with which the murderer or murderers covered the body of the victim was found near by. It was flecked with grain, showing that it had been stolen from some nearby farm.

MINNEAPOLIS LEADS.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 9.—Six propositions among the delegates to the International Typographical union convention resulted from the extreme heat today.

Minneapolis tonight seemed in the lead over Atlanta and Salt Lake City as the place for the holding of the next meeting.

BOLIVIA SEEKS WAR WITH PERU

With the Assistance of Chile Seacoast Outlet Might Be Obtained.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Is Bolivia seeking a pretense to bring on a war with Peru?
This question is being asked by South American diplomats who are watching every development in the situation in which Argentina, Bolivia and Peru are directly interested, and Chile and Brazil indirectly.

Some of the diplomats profess to think that the excitement in Bolivia over the Argentine award, which was favorable to Peru, is really a blind on the part of the politicians there to bring about an armed conflict with Peru, nominally to secure a more satisfactory adjustment of the boundaries of the disputed tract, but actually aimed at territorial conquest.

Bolivia has no seacoast. A successful war with Peru might give her an outlet to the sea by demanding an indemnity Queguay province, the southernmost in Peru and adjoining the Chilean frontier. In that province is the excellent harbor of Ilo, at the mouth of the river of that name.

Chile's probable attitude in the event of hostilities between Bolivia and Peru is also being discussed with much animation. Her financiers have been spending considerable money in the work of railroad construction in Bolivia, and the popular sympathies are believed to be with that country. Her unfriendliness to Peru dates back to the Chilean-Peruvian war of a quarter of a century ago.

With Chile's assistance Bolivia would have an advantage.

This morning there are but two trains to arrive bringing belated delegations to the Grand Army encampment, according to railroad authorities, and both of these are on the Denver & Rio Grande. It is estimated that during all day yesterday and last night about 5,000 visitors arrived in Salt Lake City, and there are possibly several thousand more who will be here by noon today. The special trains on the Denver & Rio Grande, the Salt Lake Route and the Oregon Short Line running between nearby state points have brought thousands to the city and will bring many more today. It is estimated that nearly 30,000 visitors are now here, and this number is considered a fair estimate of the number of visitors constantly in the city during the next several days, as many will come each day to take the places of those who leave.

The trains to arrive this morning will bring the New England delegates and scattering delegates from various eastern towns; also from Texas. The trains are due to arrive this morning at about 10 o'clock, but are belated, and it is not known positively now when they will set in—probably, however, before 1 o'clock.

With the arrival late last night of the delegation from Idaho the Oregon Short Line cleaned up its list, although there will probably be several special parties occupying parts of cars yet to come. The delegation from Idaho was a large one and arrived in the rain. Notwithstanding the thunder shower last night, the members of the reception committee of men and women of the G. A. R. and

W. R. C. of Salt Lake and the reception committee of the woman's citizens committee remained in their stations at the depots and welcomed the late arrivals, giving them information as to where their various headquarters were located and assisting them in every way possible. The work of these various committees yesterday was very tiresome, as most of yesterday's trains on all roads were several hours late. But one train arrived during the afternoon yesterday at the Union depot, the delegates from New York, and they were some hours late.

Delegates arriving yesterday were from Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Nebraska, California, and all arrived from forty minutes to several hours behind schedule time. The Denver & Rio Grande has a large number of special car parties and parties riding on regular trains, and it was necessary to run all regular trains in sections. The crowds were handled admirably. There were not many complaints, the principal one being that not enough booths had been erected to give visitors directions to rooms in private houses and in rooming houses aside from hotels. It was found, however, that adequate accommodations had been secured for all who had arrived up to late last night, and it is assured now that all visitors will be well taken care of.

Delegations Are Divided.

One matter which caused considerable confusion yesterday was the fact that several delegations en route became divided.
